

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method for operating a software module on a processor unit in a vehicle optimizes the processor utilization level in networked controllers. The controller on which the software module is operated is selected based on the available computation capacity of the controllers which are currently in operation.